Now that you know these sales numbers, you'll understand why big retailers like Walmart are expanding their plus-size clothing line. So definitely smaller, in my opinion. Last edited by Professor Oak; 2 years ago m/l better be sure than sorry. Thank you! Last edited by Professor Oak; 2 years ago The best thing to do is check Boohoo's Official Dimensions Guide I don't know if everyone knows this already, but I think you can get free delivery the next day here by joining their student club. I also found the clothes from there to be bigger than they seem so probably go for the smaller size. High end stores still don't tend to go beyond size 12. For example, a UK size 24 suit equals a US size 20. Fashion With the best brands not available for women plus-size, it's no wonder that most of the 300 brands that showed up at New York Fashion Week 2017 were not available for women over-size 14. I tried several times and always automatically puts a space in my zip code but then it won't allow me to complete the order with a space in it! None of the mines worked well, I'm sorry! Maybe you can e-mail him? MORE FROM LIFE123.COM I love the clothes from that website!! However some garments turn out to be bigger than they look, but a m/l would be the best option in most scenarios, what clothes are you thinking of buying, whether it is jeans or pants, definitely the m/l since it can be altered if they are a bit loose etc. Would you prefer it to be slightly larger or slightly more tight? The same report showed that the growth in the clothing industry is three percent, but in this sector the growth of the market is 6% on an annual basis. Analysis that only 32 of them made women's wear size 16 or higher. HL I was going to order some clothes on boohoo.com but one of the top is in s/m or m/l. Be careful with sizes if you buy from a website outside the United States. So which one? Which one? I'm going for?? In general, a larger percentage of a range of online resellers will be available in plus-size. Online or High Street Online retailers tend to offer more choices, but do you want to buy your clothes without trying them on first? I tried, but I just got it back to me because apparently the address doesn't exist (Original post of Dreamy whisper) I tried, but I just got it back to me because apparently the address doesn't exist Oh how weird I'm sorry I don't have any suggestions then I just ordered my first loot and so far, I'm seeing they run a little bit on the small side. And although I've grown up, I tried several times and always automatically puts a space in my zip code but then it won't allow me to complete the order with a space in it! Oh, it's just for women. How can I do that? Boo. (Original place from frawberry princess) No mine worked well, I'm sorry! Maybe you can e-mail him? Penny also offer plus-size clothing. If you find it intimidating to buy clothes on the street because you don't have a mannequin-shaped physique, shopping online is the way to go. There are stores that deal with clothing of those sizes, including Lane Bryant and Avenue, but department stores like Macy's and J. In the fashion industry, the plus-size is identified as sizes 10-14. Basically I'm just wondering if the sizes usually come small or large because I can't decide which one to take! I could order them both and send one back. Whether you need a new dress, lingerie, a leotard or a special occasion suit, you'll find a great choice in most stores. Hoo. (Original post by Dreamy whisper) Sorry the hijacking but you have trouble ordering from them? You can get clothes from designers like Prabal Gurung, but only if you go directly to them. Thank you!
